Mr. Buckingham, father of Buckingham Bros. who have taken over Mr. Holes livery business, is at present out from England on a visit to his two sons. He thinks a great deal of Alberta, and especially of this district, and is enjoying his trip

In an interview recently, Mr. W. J. Harner, Deputy Minister of Telephones, said the Provincial Government would this year carry out their full program of telephone work, involving the construction of 2400 miles of line. Work on the Strathmore rurals will be commenced shortly

LOCAL JOTTINGS

Keep the Wednesday half-holiday in mind. The town bell will give three slow rings as a signal for shutting up shop

A big day of sports will be held at Chads on Friday, June 20. $500 is offered in prizes. The program includes five games of baseball, boxing contest, horse and pony races, and other athletic sports. A dance will be held in the evening, and a good time is assured

Wednesday evening the English and Scotch will clash together once again on the Strathmore football ground. Kick-off at 7:30

This warm weather is the sort that was wanted. It has brought the crop along wonderfully

The U.F.A. auction sale on Saturday was very successful, considerably over $1000 worth of stock and machinery being disposed of at good prices. Machinery did not fetch as good prices as stock, as so many of the farmers are devoting less attention to grain raising, and going in more for mixed farming, which is a very healthy sign

Local people of all denominations will regret to hear of the impending removal of Rev. I. E. Mathews, who for the past two years has been pastor of Strathmore Methodist Church. Mr. Mathews is being transferred to Parkdale Church, Calgary, and his place here is being taken by Rev. Mr. Chauncey, who is a newcomer to Alberta. All will regret Rev. and Mrs. Mathews departure, and will wish them success in their new sphere

A number of new settlers arrived here during the past week. They are mostly from Britain

Mr. J. A. Elliott is at present on a visit to his father, Mr. John Elliott, Nightingale, arriving on Tuesday from Britain. Mr. Elliott has been in India for a period of eight years

Mr. R. L. Cameron arrived here this week. He will reside with his uncle, Mr. Robert Nicol

Mr. P. J. Korth, a prominent banker of Council Bluffs, Iowa, has been staying at the King Edward during the past week. He is looking over some land interests he has in this district

A meeting of the members of Strathmore Brass Band is called for Tuesday, June 17, at Saunders' Harness Store at 8 p.m., to discuss arrangements for the coming season. Every member and all in the district who are interested are requested to attend. The band has already the promise of a number of good engagements, and a successful season is assured if only the members will turn out

Mr. P. English, with his wife and nine of a family, arrived here this week from England, and is at present registered at the back of Edward. He intends to take up a farm in the district

The fire brigade responded in quick time to an alarm of fire yesterday afternoon. The blaze, which started in a shed at the back of Mr. Tom Connell's house. Its origin is unknown

The C.P.R. are at present replacing a number of the poles throughout their telephone system with larger and stronger ones

Fine Crop Weather

The weather of the past ten days has been very favorable to crop growth. Days and nights have been warm, with occasional thunderstorms and heavy showers which have kept the ground in moist condition and brought all green things along wonderfully. There has been an absence of high drying winds and generally speaking conditions have been all that could be desired

The showers that have fallen seem to have covered the whole district well, and have been very equally distributed

The crop has now made up its lateness over last year, and on account of the colder weather of the earlier part of the season it shows a strong and uniform growth. Last year the growth was somewhat uneven, and this caused the crop to be in many cases less than was estimated, but with continued normal weather for the remainder of this season a fine crop should be harvested

Improvements on The King Edward

The new proprietors of the King Edward Hotel, the Western Commercial Trust Co., though they have not taken formal possession of the hotel yet, are planning for extensive alterations and improvements on the property.

They started work this week with a force of about one dozen men and several teams on the excavation of a large new septic tank on the property facing First Avenue. This earth from this excavation is being used to level up the roadway at Second Street, and will prove a big improvement, as since the cement sidewalk was constructed there has been a considerable depression at the north end of Second Street

Other improvements contemplated are the widening of the grounds and remodelling of the ground floor, and also considerable improvements in the dining room and kitchen.

The population has been growing during the present week. On Sunday a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Martin, Tuesday a son to Mr. and Mrs. F. T. McElhenn, and Thursday a son to Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Scher

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Richardson yesterday morning

"Irrigate Now."

The following very interesting article is from the pen of Mr. R. N. Stockton, Superintendent of the Western Section of the Irrigation Block, and should be read carefully by every farmer who owns irrigated land.

Strathmore, Alberta,
June 26, 1913

After several trips around the country during the past two weeks, during which there has been so much dry windy weather, a close study of crop conditions has been made. It is believed that irrigation will benefit any of the crops not yet sown, followed by ground. The Alfalfa plots are especially suffering for water and should be irrigated at the earliest possible moment unless they were watered last fall. Mr. M. Williams irrigated part of his Alfalfa about two weeks ago, which is now 18 inches high and very thrifty, while the unirrigated portion is only half as high, and will not make a crop so early and probably not as heavy. Grain crops irrigated within the next two weeks will not have their growth checked in case there are more drying winds and will consequently ripen earlier, and with sufficient moisture available, will yield a larger crop. Fairly heavy showers may occur at intervals like the one early Friday morning of June 21. At first glance in the morning it would be natural to say: "Well, now the crop will be safe for another two weeks," but any farmer who will go into his field a few hours after such a rain and dig into the soil, will find that it did not penetrate very far and is mostly evaporated into the air.

This is characteristic of summer rains—they freshen the plants but are far from sufficient for maximum returns unless occurring every two or three days.

It has been stated that the water is too cold for irrigation; this statement is made by people who have not taken the trouble to get into the water. Owing to Cheyenne Reservoir and certain flooded areas and the long canal system, the water supplied for irrigation is very warm and this is one of the advantages of our system.

Hay crops should be irrigated by this time and the ditches plowed for the grain on that portion that was not summer fallowed or irrigated last fall. The field ditches should be large enough and not over 150 to 200 feet apart. Proper irrigation in June will bring results, but will flooding after the crop has begun to burn or be stunted in growth, as has passed for irrigation with certain people, will not produce desirable results, here or elsewhere. Why not take to 20 acres of smooth land, ditch and irrigate it thoroughly as directed by the Watermaster of your district, and give irrigation a trial on your grain crop. Every grain crop that has been irrigated in 1913 was doubtless. No one should have any doubts as to the necessity for irrigation of grain crops but many have not realized how greatly these crops could be increased by irrigation. Many have failed to irrigate at the proper time on account of having only a small acreage in hay and for this reason allowing some larger crop to interfere. The farmers are usually very careful about taking statements on faith, but some have accepted statements as to the doubtful utility of irrigation without exercising their customary shrewdness. It is not necessary to take anybody's word in this matter, go try irrigation for yourself, but give it a fair trial by plowing plenty of ground for irrigating at the right time, try by staying with the water so that you know the land has been irrigated and not waterlogged. For the best results the land should have been gone over with a level after the seeding, but there are large areas on nearly every farm that can now be irrigated to advantage. Irrigation is started at once. After building a head ditch from the turn-out along the high side of the field, along the high ground to the field to be irrigated, lay out the ditches on the ridges and follow the slopes on an easy grade. The field ditches should be usually about 150 feet apart, but will vary some with the slopes, and on broken ground must follow the ridges and be stepped up to the knolls as far as possible. To make the small ditches, plow two furrows each way and once through as deep as possible with the dead furrow and then run through with a level or go-dell. Have all the ditches made before you ask for water and also prepare three or four canvas dams. These dams are made with a stick between feet long, a piece of canvas, carpet or sack about five feet square nailed to it, which can be placed across the ditch to divert the water. Then when the water reaches you it can be handled without loss of time or damage to your crop or your neighbor's land. It is a good crop or a garden is irrigated, make furrows for each row deep enough to carry the water without touching the plants, and do not fail to cultivate thoroughly as soon as the ground is dry enough to work. Cultivation following irrigation is necessary in every case where the crop does not shade the ground.

Irrigation Block In Miniature

A splendid model of the whole of the C. P. R. Bow Valley Irrigation Block, including the Strathmore Demonstration Farm and the Bassano Dam, is at present on exhibition at Calgary, and will shortly be shipped down to Strathmore, where it will be in charge of Mr. Allen in the Publicity Building and will remain for some time before being shipped to various of the big exhibitions in the States.

The following description of the model is quoted from the "Alberta":

The first model of its kind ever exhibited in Canada, and perhaps the first on the North American continent, is now being shown in the engineering rooms of the C.P.R. building of Natural Resources. It is a work of infinite patience, and represents seven months' labor of the most exacting kind.

The model which shows every detail of the C. P. R. irrigation tract, as well as the working of the Demonstration Farm at Strathmore, and a model of the Bassano dam, is the work of James Edwards, a widely known European engineer, who is at present in Calgary to get the model in working order and explain its details. The model while essential, is constructed to be seen at the Chicago land show this fall, before the other parts of the United States. It is 28 feet long, 8 feet wide and is divided into six sections, four central sections showing the tract, and one section on each end showing the Demonstration Farm and the Bassano dam.

MODEL CONSTRUCTION FOR THE LAYMAN

This model was constructed with the idea of conveying an impression of the irrigated tract to the mind of the "layman," said Mr. Edwards at the King George hotel last night. "Heretofore the Canadian who wishes to gain an accurate view of the irrigated land had to be content with maps made by engineers. These maps will accurately convey the contour lines, but the layman is at a loss."

"The model, however, is simply a bird's-eye view of the tract in miniature. It is all drawn exactly to scale, the main tract being by the space of one inch to the mile, while the farm and dam sections are worked out on a scale of 20 feet to the inch. The elevations and grades of the land are shown in proportion, and even the full 5,000 miles of canals, subcanals and ditches are shown with true regard to their locations and lengths and widths."

Mr. Edwards, on behalf of the railroad company, has insured the model for $4,000 but he declares he would not part with it for many times that sum.

Red Tape in France

A remarkable story of what official red tape can accomplish comes from a report in Brittany. It appears that the military department had an order for stopping up pipes which had become useless through age.

That's why Mr. David Hean, of Nickel & Quince, is Recommending the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy. To His Neighbors.

It is curious that such a thing should have happened. It was not worth the cost of accepting it.

It was then necessary to inform the minister by an official memorandum signed by the two chiefs of the department, and to ask permission to burn the old pipes.

At last his money power became so heavy that he was able to resign. One of the clerks ventured to ask if he had not another thing to do. Oh, yes, he had an evening job.

THE INFLUENCE AND VALUE OF DRESS

See the first by whom the new is tried He yet the last to lay the new aside Of runs an old couplet and one That has considerable value For to be the first to adopt a New fashion is always a risky proceeding, and to the last to discard it when it is of no interest is a and one.
 One has to become used, in a measure, to the quick changes of style there have before one can quite appreciate such varying modes. Dame Fashion's great and violent caprices that to dress such closely is apparently a continually new personality, for she does so effect temperance. This is an acknowledged fact and has been proved over and over again, though without detriment to femininity itself.
 The value of clothes has a meaning of much more depth than the casual observer is aware of. There are some women who foolishly despise the importance of good looking wearing appearance and regard smart dressing as petty vanity. Clever people are generally supposed to live in health far above the frivolity of clothes, though cleverer people combine sartorial art with their cleverness and are doubly clever.

There is no question that dress has an unlimited effect upon personality itself and upon those with whom it comes in contact. The ill dressed person betrays immediately a lack of pride and an "artistic temperament." Unfortunately the world has a habit of making one at one's own valuation; therefore to appear dowdy or poor or servile or insignificant is to be told of these things and worse, and it takes a lot of living down.

It is perfectly true that the instinct of good dressing is not the possession alone of the pecuniarily fortunate.
 Many may be poor, but they can have no taste in dress. Indeed, there are special cases where a woman, though it avails little. "Only those who are very poor or very rich can afford to be shabby," is one attitude taken by the satisfied-to-be-ill-dressed person, but the opinion of the world is that no one can afford to be carelessly dressed.

There are two classes of dress, the fashionable and the actual, and this season is the time of the latter. It is the time of the glowing things of today's fashions, this note of personal distinction that seems to be sounded by all sorts and conditions of women, particularly those who occupy valuable positions in the working world. It says quite a lot for the industry of a girl worker when she can find time for fashions and yet be commercially valuable.

To continue the discourse for a few minutes longer, let it be said that to adopt a prevailing fashion because it is smart and up to date is not the last word in smartness, though it is a small smart woman considers it so.
 The perfection of dress is a woman's silence. The wrong gown for the occasion, like, however beautiful, is unappealing. It is, it is valuable if it shows and this is why the low colored blouse with its wide collar and plying string of pearls is such a late for morning or for any other in the evening for quiet home wear it is ideal in effect. The woman actually gown for the time and place is at once the perfectly dressed woman, however simple or inexpensive her co-time may be. It is the failure to recognize this fact that is responsible for most of the notoriously badly dressed women one sees.

The summer, frisky frock worn on wet day and the plain morning suit chosen for smart afternoon wear are mistakes not to be wiped out by the value of the dresses themselves. Nothing can excuse them or make the wear-other than ill dressed. The ballroom dancer, however pretty and becoming to the wearer, is equally undesirable for morning and business occasions and if worn then loses all smartness and becomes a vulgarity. It is consequently not so much dress itself as the attitude choice of dress that makes for a constructive appearance, and the well dressed woman is essentially the wear-anner. A trim, natty looking hat of the small variety that is provided so abundantly in the spring military is a good idea to give a better effect. The need is a heaven sent gift. Nowhere is this gift better exercised than in the traveling costume and in outing frock. Many women think that any old thing will do to travel, but there never was a more mistaken idea concerning dress. Any old thing won't do, but just before you reach your destination.

The illustrations show what the smart girl will wear this summer when she goes abroad on sporting matters instant. For the causing the frock of striped flannel is practical and pretty. The machine embroidered collar and cuffs are decorative and when needed may be easily laundered.

Never mind look middle aged in the jaunty mackinaw, and this is one response for the popularity of this outing frock, which is more becoming to the sportswoman than the old-fashioned frock of the city dweller. It is a sportswoman's frock, and has excellent features of the crown of glory which has its source in the dry scalp, and if the condition is allowed to progress its agony looks or even baldness will be the final result.

Cool weather is a drying medium we should not overlook, and special attention should be paid to the dry scalp during the first cold months of spring.

Curling iron are another of the most frequent antagonists of natural oils in the hair, drying them out and making the hair stiff and brittle. Too frequent use of shampoo will draw the oil from the glands and reduce the flow to a minimum. Especially is this true of very shampoo containing borax, ammonia or soda, all of which ingredients tend to increase the trouble. There are a few of the external cause that be considered. The source of the trouble is, of course, a tight scalp.

For a tight scalp the most effective remedy is daily massage. By massage one not only the scalp, but the entire surface with the tips of the fingers.
 To obtain results there must be a strong pressure which moves the scalp over the skull, causing increased circulation of the blood, and a more thorough taking of the roots of the hair. This is the best of all methods for stimulating the circulation of the oil glands, which are encouraged to perform their function in maintaining the health and vigor of the hair.

To encourage the action of these glands external remedies are advised.
 These are of the city variety, a combination of oil, cream or liquid tonic containing, in fact, the most stimulating ingredients. Petroleum products are excellent for this purpose and have the added advantage of being easily absorbed. Sweet almond oil and castor oil, their heaviness mitigated by another ingredient, have been known to produce speedy and lasting results.

Castor oil and cologne in the proportion of one-half ounce of the oil to four of the cologne is certain to alleviate the dryness and improve the condition of the hair.

Quite the most satisfactory of all remedies for the city variety is a combination of four ounces of cologne, one ounce of tincture of camphor and a quarter of a dram each of oil of lavender and rosemary.

NEW IDEAS FOR INEXPENSIVE WEDDING GIFTS

THIS inexpensive wedding gift has always required considerable thought and searching on the part of the donor.
 Perhaps to meet the demand for this class of gift the manufacturers have devised it wise to give their attention to novelty, and many are now to be found in the shops.

The butter dish is the very new thing in silver. This gift is most from the humble butter, who is keeping bright the family plate, gradually wears it down to a soft, dull surface and the silver is lost. Then give the polished, with the silver worn just as much as the butter.

SPRING SOUPS

THE soups which appear on the table in winter months are very heavy and now that spring has arrived. Lighter and more delicate soups are served.

Purée of green peas is a spring and summer delicacy. To make it boil a quart of shelled peas until they are tender in salted water. Add a few quarts of water and a small onion to the water. Rub through a colander and strain to the fine, then add a pinch of salt, a little pepper and half a cupful of cream. Boil for a few minutes.

In winter months a small amount of flour and the same amount of butter and add it to the boiling soup. Cook for a moment longer and serve.
